UPDATE: AAHOA Statement on Passage of Bipartisan Stimulus Agreement

The following is an updated statement reflecting the House and Senate passage of the stimulus package introduced earlier today.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 21 – AAHOA President & CEO Cecil P. Staton issued the following statement in response to congressional passage of the bipartisan bill which provides a new round of emergency stimulus for those hit hardest by the COVID-19 pandemic's economic fallout:

“The lodging industry has been devastated by the effects of this pandemic, and the livelihoods for so many hoteliers and hotel employees are in peril. I am very pleased to see that their pleas have been heard by Congress today. As the hardest hit industry, hospitality needed another lifeline to survive for the next few months until additional capital relief is available, and this bill provides valuable time for our industry. We are grateful to our leaders for coming together for the good of the country.

"For hoteliers, the most significant components in this package include a second round of PPP funding to help keep employees on payroll during the most difficult time of year. We also particularly appreciate that congressional leaders understood the unique challenges faced by hoteliers and provided an increase in the PPP loan amounts to our industry. In addition to addressing payroll challenges, this bill also includes critical banking relief to enable hoteliers to defer mortgage payments for the near term. AAHOA members and our partners across lodging, banking, and small business, rallied together to fight for a year-long extension for troubled debt restructuring (TDR) classification and after much debate, our priority was included in the final bill. The legislation also includes more funding for Small Business Administration programs including 504, 7(a), and Economic Disaster Loans (EIDL). We are grateful for these inclusions because they are literally the difference between remaining open and going into foreclosure for countless hotel owners. I am proud that the tens of thousands of letters sent by AAHOA members over the past few weeks and months have resonated with our public officials.

"In these most challenging times for hotels in our nation's history, we appreciate the bipartisanship displayed by congressional leadership and members across the country. We welcome this spirit to continue into the new year.

“Today is a big step in the right direction to helping in the survival of the lodging industry. We look forward to continuing this engagement to ensure our voices continued to be heard.”
